Having been a professional photographer for many years, Colin Jarvis can undoubtedly claim to be one of the most respected Landscape and Architectural photographers in the North of England. Having worked in education teaching photography prior to turning professional, it goes without saying that he is a true master of both film and digital photographic techniques, and in this exceptional talk "Mono Moods", Colin will present us with an illustration of the power of light in Mono photography, and the way in which light, in all its forms, can inject mood and drama into an image.

In addition to running residential workshops to some of the most beautiful areas of the UK, Colin also has had a number of articles published in various photographic journals and books,
