Marianthi Lainas is a self taught Landscape photographer who has spent most of her life living close to the sea, a factor that is evident from many of her maritime images - many of them taken close to her home in the Wirral. Since leaving her job in the voluntary sector about 10 years ago, Marianthi has thrown herself into photography, her more recent work focussing on the more extreme environments of the polar regions, including Arctic Greenland. She also runs workshops for photographers wanting to improve their outdoor photography skills, and her work is exhibited in many galleries throughout the country,

You can see the range of her work on her website - www. http://marianthilainas.com/
